

HOME CARE CHECKLIST

A Consumer Checklist of Important Considerations When Choosing Senior Services and Care in the Home.

Quite often, an elderly individual isn't ready to leave their home for independent living, an assisted living residence, or a nursing home, but still could use some assistance in their own home. Such assistance can range from periodic health care and personal grooming services, to 24-hour in-home caregiving. There are many options available and it's best to know what they are and how they may help a senior living at home before researching particular care and service choices in your area.

No doubt, there will be many additional questions you'll have when considering senior home care and services, but this checklist can be a great help when thinking through the many options available.

Below are considerations to help you determine if senior home care is right for you.
